I notice in reading the subscription list that some of the very largest pur-chases of Liberty Bonds and donations to the Red Cross were made by Cinatomatt distillers and liquor dealers. This after James A. White, Sup-erintendent of the Ohio Anti-Salcon Learner, had refused to call off the 1917 campaign and give its campaign funds to the Hed Cross, as suggested by Col. Galbraith of the First Regiment, a patriotic proposal that the wets had al-ready agreed to. Instead of cheering for the Slars and Stripes, Mr. White and Roy.
